

Indigenous Studies Pre-Requisite Requirement

Beginning with the 2024 application cycle (for 2025 admission), applicants to the Master of Physician Assistant Studies (MPAS) program must have an Indigenous studies prerequisite completed. The approved 3 credit unit course or equivalent course must have a focus on teaching the historical context and effects of colonialism on Indigenous peoples in Canada.

At the time of application, applicants will be expected to have a plan in place for completion of the Indigenous studies pre-requisite. Applicants will be required to enter the course information (institution, course number, course name, start date and completion date) on their application. As the successful completion of an approved course will be a condition of any offer of admission, applicants must have successfully completed the approved course by April 30, 2025. If the condition is not met, the offer of admission will be revoked.

For a course to be considered towards meeting this requirement, the course must be listed on this document. It is imperative that applicants review the list of approved courses to ensure that they have met the requirement.

If an applicant has already completed or has plans to take a course that is not on the list, they need to immediately email mpas.admissions@usask.ca clearly outlining course details (institution, course number, course description, start date, and a link to the course syllabus or attach a PDF of the course syllabus to your email) prior to the application deadline to ensure approval of the course.

For applicants that have completed their undergraduate degree and are enrolled in a graduate program or are not attending a post-secondary institution, a certificate of successful completion from the Indigenous Canada course offered by the University of Alberta OR Building an Awareness of Cultural Humility course offered by the University of Saskatchewan will meet the prerequisite requirement for the 2024 application cycle. Please note that the above-mentioned courses may have limited start dates and a formal certificate confirming successful completion will be required.
