

ABORIGINAL HEALTH: VULNERABILITY & RESILIENCE

DR. DON WILSON, FRCSC

OBSTETRICIAN GYNECOLOGIST
CLINICAL ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR
CUMMING SCHOOL OF MEDICINE, UNIVERSITY OF CALGARY

BIOSKETCH: Dr. Don Wilson is a member of the Heiltsuk Nation, which is located on the north central coast of British Columbia. He practices general Obstetrics and Gynecology in Calgary, Alberta. He was the co-chair of the Aboriginal Health Initiatives Committee with the Society of Obstetricians and Gynecologists of Canada for 10 years. He has also served as the Canadian liaison on the American Indian and Alaska Native Affairs Committee with the American College of Obstetrics & Gynecology.

OBJECTIVES:

1. To discuss at least 3 historical determinants of the current health status of Aboriginal people in Canada
2. To review the components of an approach to culturally safe care
3. To share with the audience some examples of vulnerability and resilience in the Aboriginal context
4. To encourage reflection on Aboriginal identity in Canada

Thursday, November 24th, 2016 - 5:00 PM
Gordon Oakes Red Bear Student Centre
5 Campus Drive, University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon

This event will be broadcast over the Telehealth Saskatchewan network.
To attend in a community near you, RSVP to your local Telehealth support by Nov 21, 2016. Video Conference broadcast not guaranteed without RSVP.
>>>American Sign Language Interpretation will be provided<<<

Presented by the University of Saskatchewan Department of Obstetrics, Gynecology & Reproductive Sciences

OPEN TO THE PUBLIC