Medical Class of 1939 Resident Teacher Award in Medicine

The Medical Class of 1939 Resident Teacher Award in Medicine has been established through a donation from Dr. Donald Wilson (class of 1939) to recognize medical residents who have excelled in teaching while at the College of Medicine, University of Saskatchewan. Dr. Wilson made this donation in recognition of the training received by him and his class during their time at the College of Medicine.

The Award

- Two awards of equal value, as determined by the Award Committee and based on financial resources available, are available on an annual basis.
- One award will be granted to a resident training in Family Medicine and the other award will be granted to a resident training in a Royal College specialty-training program.

Eligibility

Any resident currently enrolled in a College of Medicine (RCPSC or CFPC) postgraduate training program at the University of Saskatchewan.

Selection Criteria

1. Excellence in teaching in different settings. Examples include, but are not limited to, bedside teaching, informal teaching, morning report teaching.
2. Excellence in teaching in different CanMEDS roles.
3. Evidence of student satisfaction and student learning and impact on educational outcomes.
4. Demonstrated commitment to teaching.

Nomination Process

Each year the Postgraduate Medical Education Office issues a call for nominations. Undergraduate medical students, residents, faculty and staff of the College of Medicine are eligible to nominate a candidate. Self-nominations are ineligible.
