

University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon

The University of Saskatchewan offers a one-year Fellowship in Forensic Psychiatry that is fully accredited by the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada. The principal site of training is located in Saskatoon at the Regional Psychiatric Centre. Training is also undertaken at Saskatchewan Hospital, North Battleford. The Fellow will also have involvement with the Saskatchewan Review Board and forensic outpatient assessments.

The Forensic Division is an important part of Saskatchewan's mental healthcare system, which provides both inpatient and outpatient services. The division promotes clinical care, education, research, and advocacy for forensic mental health patients. The Division consists of members from Correctional Services Canada, the Department of Adult Psychiatry, the Department of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, the Faculty of Law, Saskatchewan Hospital North Battleford, and private practice.

Saskatoon is a vibrant, active and culturally rich city of over 325,000 people. In Saskatoon residents will enjoy working alongside the scenic South Saskatchewan River, which provides breathtaking views as it flows through the city.
