Access to Electronic Resources

To get access to any of our electronic books, journals, or databases, you will need your NSID and password. You should have received this information in your acceptance letter (i.e., the letter in which you agreed to become a faculty member). If you need help, leave a message for IT Support at 306-966-2222 (in Saskatoon) or 1-800-966-4817 (toll free in Canada), or email itsupport@usask.ca.

Once you know your NSID and password, make use of the subscriptions of the Library when searching Google Scholar by going to "Settings" in Google Scholar, clicking on "Library links", searching for University of Saskatchewan, ensuring all three checkboxes are marked, and clicking save. You'll then see the links to U of S Library subscriptions to the right of your Google Scholar results. Also, download the Proxy Bookmarklet to easily access journal articles directly from the publisher's page (when we have a subscription).

Access to Print Books and Journals

You are able to borrow print books and journals from any U of S Library location. If you need only a chapter or small part of a print book, you can submit a scan request and have that material emailed to you.

Distance and Distributed Library Services

The Leslie and Irene Dubé Health Sciences Library will mail print books to faculty. Go to <https://library.usask.ca/ddls/index.php> to register for this service.

Interlibrary Loan <https://library.usask.ca/ill/index.php>

If you need access to an article from a journal to which the U of S Library doesn't subscribe, submit an interlibrary loan request. This is a free service, and delivery to your inbox takes only a few days. Print books can also be requested through this service, but will take longer, since a physical copy will need to be mailed to the U of S Library.

Liaison Librarians

If you need advice on a literature search, have questions about our services, would like to recommend a book for purchase, or have any other library-related questions, get in touch with your liaison librarian. Contact information is on the research guides whose links are provided at the top of the page.
